

Home / Street Talk
STREET TALK | May 29 2017 at 12:15 AM | Updated May 29 2017 at 12:15 AM

Save Article | Print | License Article

Chris Cuffe lined up for board of Sydney fundie EGP Capital

Chris Cuffe, pictured, is preparing to join EGP Capital's board as part of the firm's push to increase investor awareness and assets under management. Nic Walker

by Sarah Thompson Anthony Macdonald Joyce Moullakis

Hall of fame fund-manager Chris Cuffe has thrown his support behind another Australian equities boutique, Sydney-based EGP Capital.

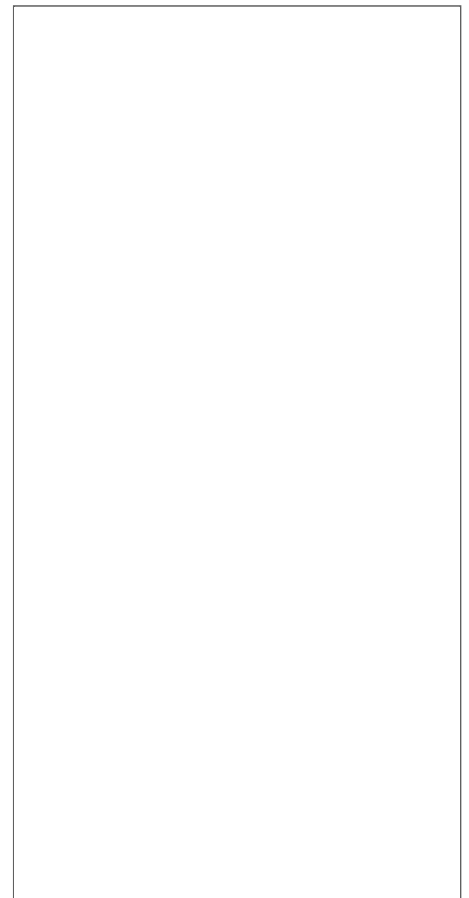

Street Talk understands the former head of Colonial First State is preparing to join EGP Capital's board as part of the firm's push to increase its awareness among investors and bolster assets under management.

It's understood EGP Capital is considering a number of options, including new funds and strategies, to capitalise on the success of its existing performance numbers.

EGP Capital is run by Tony Hansen who started the firm after a career in the construction and infrastructure industries.

Hansen's fund has gained an average 17.11 per cent a year since inception in 2011, while its benchmark (the S&P/ASX200 Franking Credit Adjusted Annual Total Return Index) gained 8.6 per cent a year over the same timeframe.

The fund typically aims to hold stocks for long periods and is not scared to fish at the smaller-end of the market often overlooked by bigger managers and brokers. It does

1181821234567

Related articles

Markets Live: Bruised ASX eyes iron ore

LIVE

ASX seen higher in thin trade, iron ore drops

Cuffe is well known in Australian financial services as the former head of Colonial First State and stepped away with a bumper golden handshake to later run the Third Link Growth Fund which donates all management fees to charities. His Third Link invests with a number of local funds including Pengana Capital, Cooper Investors and Bennelong Australian Equity Partners.

Cuffe, who also holds other non-executive roles including chairman of UniSuper, was inducted into the Australian Fund Manager's hall of fame in 2007. Other stockpicker inductees include Geoff Wilson, Hamish Douglass, Paul Taylor and John Sevier.

Westpac Bank's Ascalon auction into next round

Aussie start-ups shine in Citi tech challenge

Latest Stories

Why US consumers are spending less

1 min ago

This suburb is home to more rich listers than any other

6 mins ago

Markets Live: Bruised ASX eyes iron ore

LIVE

More

Recommended

'Not a viable option': Uber hikes fares and adds...

Funding increases for Catholic schools negate their...

Morgan Stanley looks within

British Airways flights cancelled because of IT outage has...

Goldman Sachs hires equities co-heads out of Macquarie

From Around the Web

Promoted

SMSF property mistakes: The errors to avoid at all costs

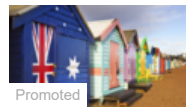

Esuperfund

Promoted

Analysis of Exchange Traded Managed Funds (White Paper)

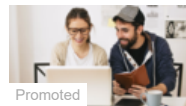

AMP Capital

Promoted

Top Home Loans 2017: Is Your Loan On the List?

Mozo

Promoted

Why you should get health insurance

iSelect

Promoted

Born before 1969? Save on Life Insurance

Life Insurance Comparison

powered by plista

Special Reports

Jac Nasser on 30 years at the top

The 'magic is in the supply chain'

Average rich lister worth $1.16b

Yenda Lee doesn't sweat the small stuff

Paul Little bought a plane for $1

Epic fail on gender diversity

CSL's Paul Perreault eyes the long game

Are nice leaders effective?

SBS's data driven future

The revolution has begun

Where to celebrate 150 years of Frank Lloyd Wright

Top Australian homes you can buy today

Luxury must-haves in the rich colours of the season

This boss even cycles when he's indoors

Five grand hotel debuts from Havana to Stockholm

Employee awareness crucial in cyber defence

Defence industry on guard against new threats

Design ties the elements together

Sydney becomes the creative hub of the region

Digital makeover seduces reluctant welding heir